

A Postdoctoral position is open at Institut Telecom, France.

Institut Telecom, Telecom SudParis, Network and Service Architecture lab is hiring one PhD graduate for a postdoctoral position (full contract) starting in early 2011 / spring 2011. The institute is a telecommunications research and education centre, located outside Paris in Evry, France.

The position will focus on one or several topics of expertise of the lab which include :

- P2P Social Networking
- Telco 2.0, User Generated Services
- Service aspects of Future Internet
- NGN/IMS
- Internet of Things

Candidates are expected to take a key role in national and European research projects, to develop their own research field, to co-supervise master and PhD students, and to conduct high quality research that will be published in leading journals.

Requirements:

- Recent PhD in Computer Science, Electrical Engineering,
- Strong research background in relevant communication and networking technologies.
- Track record of high-quality publications
- Talented individuals with strong motivation, team spirit.
- Excellent English skills are a prerequisite (French is not needed as English is the working language).

Application:

Qualified applicants are encouraged to submit their CV, cover letter, transcripts, research statement, most significant publications and references by email.