Welcome to Telecom SudParis!

It's our great pleasure to welcome you within the student community of Telecom SudParis - whether you're here as part of an exchange program, for a dual degree or a Master of Science.

Many of you have left your country and your family to come and study at Telecom SudParis. We are aware that this must have been a difficult decision for you to take, so we hope that this experience will be rewarding and worthwhile, from an academic point of view as well as in human terms.

Qualifications and certificates are most certainly important, but we don't think education should be restricted to diplomas. In a broad sense, education is about acquiring knowledge, developing skills, attitudes and qualities that cannot be easily tested - enthusiasm, commitment, honesty, and a sense of priority, selfconfidence and open-mindedness. We hope that our multi-cultural community will help you understand the meaning of the term "citizen of the world".

We hope that this immersion among different nationalities, cultures and languages will leave you with a deeper understanding and respect of others. In certain situations, - either professional or personal - we should remember that difference does not equate with a vision of right and wrong and that things can be done and actions interpreted in many different ways. We hope that you will benefit from this experience, learn from cultural differences, and develop skills sought after by multinational companies.

This guide is designed to help you discover your new environment and provide you with important information to facilitate your integration in France and on campus, so you should always keep it within reach. Please feel free to contact the international office if you need further details.

Enjoy your stay!

Roisin DONOHOE
Director of International Relations

“It’s our great pleasure to welcome you”

Are you ready for the IT world?

Telecom SudParis is part of Institut Mines-Telecom, France's leading group of engineering schools, supervised by the Ministry of Industry. It's a public higher education and research institution, and one of the best IT oriented public schools for budding engineers. Télécom SudParis is also a member of Université Paris-Saclay, the first French research cluster in sciences and technologies of information.

In view of the numerous industrial, economical and social challenges with which we are confronted in this era of technological development, companies expect the graduates from Telecom SudParis to be creative and skilled enough to conceive groundbreaking products and services. Throughout your curriculum, project management and innovation will be the themes emphasized by the professors in Telecom SudParis.

For over 30 years, Telecom SudParis has shared a 14,8 acre campus with Telecom Ecole de Management. This synergy is not restricted to the schools relationships; it is the backbone for the whole organization of academic paths, study methods within interdisciplinary teams, research topics, the development of ongoing vocational training modules and partnerships with various industrialists, as well as community organizers.

You want to relax, have fun and broaden your knowledge? There are about 60 associations and clubs on the campus - all managed by the Student Union. Thanks to the Théâtre de l'Agora and the national conservatory of music, there is a vigorous cultural life in Evry, a town which also happens to be one of the greenest in France, with 543,6 acres of open spaces, including the banks of the Seine.

In figures...

- Over 1100 students with 56 different nationalities on campus
- 103 professor-researchers
- 108 PhD students
- More than 300 partner companies
- More than 100 international academic partners
- 6 research and training departments
- 3 Specialized Masters
- 4 Master of Science

Research

Research activities are closely related to pedagogy, for training and research are constantly stimulated by one another, and these activities increasingly reflect the needs of modern corporate environments.

Within the Telecom SudParis departments, research activities are carried out by all the professors-researchers. A great number of Ph. D. students participate in the research under the supervision of researchers.

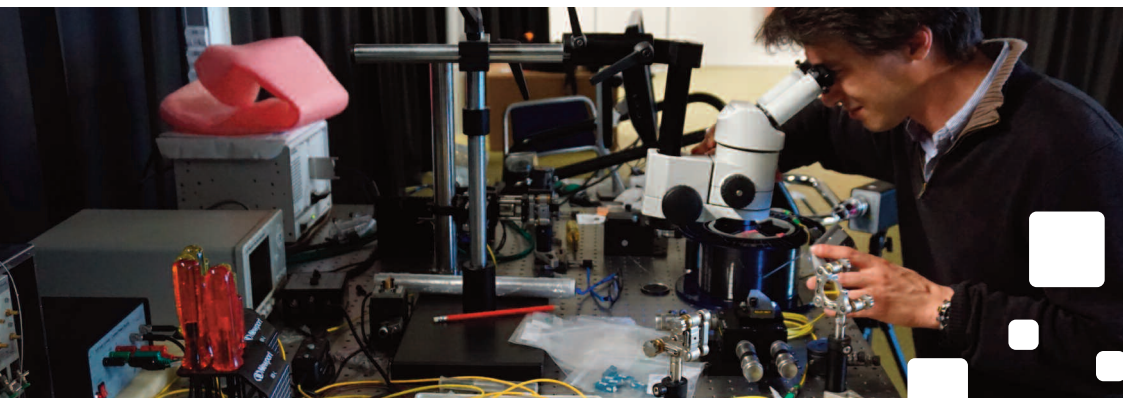

Principal fields of studies:

- Mobile Communication Networks
- Autonomous and Spontaneous Networks
- Pervasive computing, middleware, distributed systems
- Web and Information Systems
- Multimedia
- Information Society
- IT Applications and Uses

What to do before your departure?

Formalities to enter in France

EU Student:

- ID or valid passport
- European Health Insurance Card

Non-EU Student:

To enter France, Non-EU students need a visa. If the length of study is up to 3 months, the French Consulate in your country will give you a Student long stay visa called «VLS-TS» valid for 6 months to 1 year. The holder no longer has to apply for the Residence Permit the first year of their stay in France.

To obtain the visa, you must follow the “CEF procedure”. More information about this procedure here:

<http://www.campusfrance.org/en>

What to bring with you?

- Birth certificate translated into French by the French Consulate in your country
- Wedding certificate if you come with your spouse or if you plan to
- Certified copies of your degrees and grades
- OFII form which is given along with the entry visa
- Warm clothes for the Winter (very cold and long...)
- Adapter for electronic devices (computer, hair dryer...), in France we use 220 volts plugs

Depending on the country and the CEF center, it should take between 1-2 months to obtain your visa.

Any difficulty to obtain your visa?

Send a mail to international@telecom-sudparis with your full name, your application number and the Consulate where you have submitted your application.

International Insurance

You must subscribe to a travel insurance to be covered the first month of your stay in France while registering at the French Student Social Security (compulsory), and check that the insurance covers you while travelling outside of your country for medical costs, repatriation and other unexpected events (i.e. lost luggage).

Important thing to do!

Once you get your visa and flight tickets, do not forget to register on the Welcom website:

www.welcom-evry.com

Money

We advise you to apply for an international Visa or Master Card. Payment in France for almost anything is easier to do with an international credit card such as Visa or MasterCard (American Express is recognized as well but is far less easily accepted). Also, if you have a pin code, almost all ATMs will allow you to withdraw Euros using these credit cards. Be sure to check with your bank concerning the charges and exchange rate applied when using the card in shops and withdrawing money from ATMs. If you exchange money before you come, remember to ask for small denomination bank notes/euro bills as it is EXTREMELY difficult to get stores, and even banks, to accept a 200 € bill.

The campus informatics resources

Telecom SudParis is obviously a networked place: among other local areas supporting networks, fiber optic, hertzian and laser networks are operating on the campus.

Ten rooms for practical work, equipped with 13 workstations, open 24/7 (except during holidays when access is restricted), located on the ground floor of building B.

The multimedia library

The multimedia library places sciences, telecommunications, management, language acquisition and cultural resources at your disposal. The librarians are here to ensure a customized research of documents, and to train students in the use of media research tools.

The multimedia library information system is comprehensive: a web-based catalog and electronic resources (media portals and specialized database) both available within the intranet and extranet networks (authentication required outside the campus).

Preventive medicine

You should ask the nurse if you want to make an appointment with a doctor. Systematic examinations for all freshers: each student should attend an examination, at least once during his or her first school year. On the day of your doctor's appointment, which you may make upon request, you should bring your health record with you.

Services

- Issuing of a medical certificate for sport practice
- Should the need arise, vaccination monitoring and booster doses
- GP consultations (nonprescription medicine)
- Care of disabled students or students suffering from a chronic disease.

These services are FREE OF CHARGE and included in the tuition fees. Medical examinations take place in the infirmary.

Handicap

We will do our best for you throughout your studies, both on the level of physical accessibility, as on the level of knowledge accessibility. To make your life easier in the year to come, you should inform the "handicapped students" consultant, Ms. Grandjean once you've been admitted to school. To obtain the handicapped student status, you should consult the preventive medicine service upon your arrival, they'll establish a medical certificate detailing the specific conditions to be taken into account.

Vaccination

When you first visit the Office Français de l'Immigration et de l'Intégration (OFII / French agency in charge of migration and welcoming foreign people), their staff should check your vaccination expiration dates. If the latter have reached their date limit, make an appointment with Mrs. Grandjean as soon as possible.

N.B.: French regulations are probably different from those in effect in your country. The French law stipulates that diphtheria, tetanus and polio vaccinations must be up-to-date.

Student life

Student associations

There are about sixty campus-based associations: sports, cultural and logistics campus based facilities are made available for any activity planned by an association, and they can benefit from the Student Life Committee's assistance (Commission Vie Etudiante) to implement their projects. Each one of you can already contribute to the life of an association and start developing projects.

The "Welcom" association

"Welcom" is a Student Union club whose aim is to welcome foreign students and help them with their everyday life in the community. Upon your arrival on the campus, some of your fellow students will help you settle in. For a smoother integration, the club will organise numerous events: discovery nights, French culture nights, outings in Paris and cultural visits...

Website: <http://welcom-evry.com>

BDE

The student union members coordinate the activities planned by clubs and student associations as part of their various projects. They plan trips and a mass of activities throughout the school year. Your membership shall be established on the time spent at Telecom SudParis on a prorata basis.

AIESEC

Throughout the school year, members of the association will be here to receive foreign students working in local companies. They organize lecture series and training seminars for students who wish to pursue a career at a global level – including subjects such as “French culture and culture shock”.

ASINT

The campus based sports association participates in sporting events organized by the FFSU or “Grandes Ecoles”.

DOLPH'INT

The Sailing Club members participate in the boat race sponsored by SPI Dauphine, the students French Cup, Trophée des Caraïbes and EDHEC boat race. They are the publishers of the first and only national sailing magazine written by students, ZEF'INT.

Forum des Telecommunications

One of the first student recruitment forums that was extended to other European countries, by integrating new services to traditional lines of business. About a hundred companies and thousands of visitors will attend the forum: this recruitment fair has become an unmissable event for Services and ITC professionals and students.

SPRINT

One of the few Junior Enterprise which offers companies the specific skills of budding engineers and managers and who aim to develop niches of excellence inside the school: services – information technology. Sprint is a member of the Confédération Nationale des Juniors Entreprises (CNJE), which constitutes a service quality pledge in itself. They received the “certification ISO 9001” in 2008, and the best French JE award for Communication in 2009.

The history, customs and language of the Ile-de-France region have merged with those of Paris, and spread throughout the whole country. The destiny of France was played out in the region, which is a living museum: Gothic art was born here and nowadays there are hundreds of beautiful churches and cathedrals left.
